Description

Winter White Diffusion: Abstract, Mixed Media on Canvas, Artist Unknown, Monagram M & Dated 97 lower right This exciting composition explores diffusion and possibilities within white using colour, texture and medium. The artist has created an array of winter white shades mixing white with small amounts of red, brown, black and blue demonstrating how white is influenced by the colours around it. His handling of the paint is masterful creating distinct shapes with thick impasto and background texture with viscocity and using light brushstrokes within the abstraction drawing the eye into the composition. Mixing oil, gouache, watercolour and pencil is a play on the different frequencies that colours have and their impact on white. This composition reflects possibilities within white and how reflects its surroundings and is not neutral as it synthesises with the colours and shapes around it creating a unique palette, mood and aesthetic. Mixed media on canvas length 70cm height 50cm Free floated on a white mount within a stepped white wooden box frame length 85cm, height 64cm, depth 7cm
